Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2, 4 and 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over GB'645 in view of Hudd. GB'645 teaches, at page 4 lines 20-27 for example, that when casting copper cooling elements, it was known in the art at the time the invention was made to employ chill molds for the casting of the cooling elements, where the molds would have a base, walls and end plates, thereby showing all aspects of the above claims except the use of copper (rather than the cast-iron of GB'645) mold walls, cooling pipes or a graphite lining plates. Hudd teaches that when casting copper components, chill molds (shown in figure 1 for example) comprising copper plates or blocks (1) lined with graphite plates (2) and cooled with cooling pipes (4) provide improved durability and service life to the mold when compared to other types of copper casting molds (see col. 2 lines 23-55 for example). As stated in the instant specification at page 2 for example, graphite plates will inherently attach themselves to the copper walls by means of underpressure. Because improved durability and increased service life would also be desirable in the chill mold designed for copper casting described in GB'645, motivation to employ the chill mold materials described in Hudd when constructing the mold described by GB'645, in order to increase service life of the mold, would have been a modification obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed on 7-28-2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant's argument that GB'645 does not teach all of the components required by the instant claims for the mold is not persuasive because Hudd is cited to teach these features. One cannot show nonobviousness by attacking references individually where the rejections are based on combinations of references. See In re Keller, 642 F.2d 413, 208 USPQ 871 (CCPA 1981); In re Merck & Co., 800 F.2d 1091, 231 USPQ 375 (Fed. Cir. 1986). Applicant's further argument that since Hudd employs other attachment means the graphite is not held to the mold walls by underpressure is not persuasive because the instant claims do not exclude the use of additional attachment means as well as the underpressure effect which, as stated in the instant specification, is inherent. Also applicant's argument that Hudd is not equipped with cooling pipes is not persuasive because Hudd teaches cooling pipes (4) in the mold wall.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
